D. Consent to Receive and Certify Receipt of Electronic Mail

The Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) may deliver permits, certifications and plan approvals to recipients, including applicants or permittees, by electronically certified mail where the recipients notify DEQ of their consent to receive mail electronically (§ 10.1-1183). Check only one of the following to consent to or decline receipt of electronic mail from DEQ as follows:

- Applicant or permittee agrees to receive by electronic mail the permit and any plan approvals associated with the permit that may be issued for the proposed pollutant management activity, and to certify receipt of such electronic mail when requested by the DEQ.
- Applicant or permittee declines to receive by electronic mail the permit and any plan approvals associated with the permit that may be issued for the proposed pollutant management activity.

E. Signature and Certification Statement

WATER RECLAMATION AND REUSE VARIANCE APPLICATION

INSTRUCTIONS

The Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) has the authority to grant variances to design, construction, operation or maintenance requirements of the Water Reclamation and Reuse Regulation (9VAC25-740-10 et seq.) for projects involving the production, distribution or reuse of reclaimed water that are not otherwise excluded from the requirements of the regulation per 9VAC25-740-50. Any person or entity applying for a variance must demonstrate that:

- Complying with such requirements would be contrary to the purpose of State Water Control Law, specifically § 62.1-44.2 of the Code of Virginia,
- The hardship imposed by such requirements, which may be economic, outweighs the benefits of the project, and
- The granting of such variance would not adversely impact public health or the environment.

Where the Water Reclamation and Reuse Regulation references the Sewage Collection and Treatment Regulations (9VAC25-790-10 et seq.) for design, construction, operation, or maintenance requirements affecting components of a project to produce, distribute, or reuse reclaimed water, an application for a variance to such requirements shall be in accordance with variance procedures described in 9VAC25-790-10 et seq.

WHO MAY APPLY FOR A VARIANCE

Any person or entity wishing to initiate a project for the production, distribution or reuse of reclaimed water that is not excluded from the requirements of the Water Reclamation and Reuse Regulation per 9VAC25-740-50, may apply for a variance to design, construction, operation, or maintenance requirements of the regulation. A variance application may be submitted:

- For projects that involve new or existing facilities or operations;
- At any time for projects applying for or holding a valid Virginia Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (VPDES) permit, Virginia Pollution Abatement (VPA) permit, administrative authorization associated with an existing VPDES permit, or emergency authorization associated with an existing VPDES or VPA permit to produce, distribute or reuse reclaimed water; and
- Independent of or with an application to authorize a project for the production, distribution or reuse of reclaimed water.

WHERE TO FILE A VARIANCE APPLICATION

The completed variance application must be submitted to the DEQ Regional Office covering the area where the project will be located. Regional Office information is available at <http://www.deq.virginia.gov/Locations.aspx> or can be obtained by calling the DEQ Central Office in Richmond, Virginia at (804) 698-4000.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

Complete all items or enter “NA” for “not applicable”. Enter requested information on the lines or spaces and in the boxes provided in the application. When using attachments to provide requested information for specific items of the application, note on the application the title of the attachment and, if applicable, the location within

DEQ may need information in addition to that initially submitted with the application to make a determination to grant or deny a variance. Applicants for a variance are responsible for providing additional information requested by DEQ. When an applicant does not provide the requested information or provides insufficient information, the variance may be denied.

INSTRUCTIONS SPECIFIC TO SECTIONS OF THE APPLICATION

The following are instructions specific to Sections A, B, C, D and E of the application.

A. Applicant Information

Section A must be completed to provide information about the applicant and the facility or project for which the variance application is being submitted. The applicant will, in most cases, be the owner of the facility, and the same person or party applying for or holding a valid VPDES permit, VPA permit, administrative authorization associated with an existing VPDES permit, or emergency authorization associated with an existing VPDES or VPA permit to produce, distribute or reuse reclaimed water. Facility information must include the name, and physical address and location of the facility or project.

B. Permitting Information

Section B must be completed to identify other applications that may be in process for the project, and any existing permit coverage of the project related to water reclamation and reuse. Note that a variance application may be submitted for only projects applying for or holding a valid VPDES permit, VPA permit, administrative authorization associated with an existing VPDES permit, or emergency authorization associated with an existing VPDES or VPA permit to produce, distribute or reuse reclaimed water.

C. Variance Information

Section C must be completed to provide information on the variance being requested for the project. This information will be evaluated by DEQ in a decision to grant or deny the requested variance, and should be clear, relevant and detailed. If needed to complete items C.1 through C.6 of the application, additional information may be attached. See “General” above for more instructions regarding application attachments.

D. Consent to Receive and Certify Receipt of Electronic Mail

DEQ will deliver the decision to grant or deny a variance to the applicant by certified mail. Certified mail may be delivered electronically only where the applicant agrees to the terms of electronic mail delivery in Section D.

E. Signature and Certification Statement

Section E must be completed by the appropriate signatory authority or authorities. For a water reclamation and reuse project that is or will be covered by a VPDES permit, or an administrative or emergency authorization associated with an existing VPDES permit, the appropriate signatory authorities are as specified in 9VAC25-31-110 of the VPDES Permit Regulation. For a similar project that is or will be covered by a VPA permit, or an emergency authorization associated with an existing VPA permit, the appropriate signatory authority are as specified in 9VAC25-32-70 of the VPA Permit Regulation.
